Announcement was made today that the Brainerd Foundry Company has been awarded a $200,000 contract from the Northern Pacific Railway for the manufacture of bearings of all descriptions to be used by the Northern Pacific in the year of 1928.

This contract which goes to one of Brainerd's growing industries will mean a stimulation in the population of this city by thirty families, as 30 additional men will be added to the foundry force for the entire year.

More than 1,500,000 pounds of brass are to be used in the manufacture of these bearings. The delivery is to be made by the foundry company to the Northern Pacific shops here.

The contract also includes all of the brass castings to be used by the Northern Pacific Railway for the entire system during the year 1928.

The contract was secured through the efforts of Clyde Parker, president of the foundry company, and F. E. Kinemiller, manager and superintendent, and will take effect Jan. 1.

A new addition, 46 feet by 50 feet, for moulding space has been added to the present factory, also a machine shop and pattern shop on the second story, 20 feet by 66 feet, at the rear of the building. This improvement represents an expenditure of $9,000. The new part will be fully equipped and ready for occupancy by January 1.

The Brainerd Foundry Company has purchased all the brass equipment from the Northern Pacific Railway Company. These are being moved out of the N. P. brass foundry at the present time.

The foundry will be equipped with all modern machinery and modern moulding machinery.

The Brainerd Foundry is at present making some of the largest acid resisting bronze castings in the state. These include some for paper mills, weighing 1,360 pounds each. In addition the foundry is handling all casting work for the Cuyuna Range.

The Brainerd Foundry Company was organized in the year of 1923, and has continued to grow ever since.

HAMMER FREELY
USED IN FREE
FOR ALL FIGHT

Chicago, Dec. 13.—(U.P.)—A free for all fight in which a hammer was freely used was pictured by police today as they investigated the death of Richard P. Colton, 35, attorney, whose body was found in a downtown office early this morning.

Two men were under arrest and a third was sought. A woman, wife of one of the suspects, and an 11-year-old boy also were held.

Police pieced together a story of a fight involving William Sweeney, official of a painters' union, and Frank and Harry McHugh, brothers, members of the union. The dispute started at a union meeting and afterwards all four went to Sweeney's office.

Colton's body, managed by fists and the hammer, and with marks on the throat indicating he had been choked, was found by a watchman hours later. Broken furniture in the office indicated the severity of the fight, in which, police believed, Sweeney had aided Colton against the other two.

Frank McHugh, his wife and his 11-year-old son were arrested at their home today after Colton's body had been identified by his bride of two months.

REMUS SCORES
FORMER DRY AGENT
F. L. DODGE, JR.

TERMED HIM "BOLSTERED UP
MASS OF NOTHING-

"KICKED OUT OF THE DEPART-MENT OF JUSTICE," SAYS
REMUS

By PAUL W. WHITE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 13.—Eloquent-ly defending two friends who have been indicted on perjury charges during his trial on a charge of wife murder, George Remus today excoriated Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., former dry agent.

Dodge was termed a "bolstered up mass of nothingness, kicked out of the department of justice." Remus was pleading that Dodge was behind the indictments returned against John S. Berger of Los Angeles and Vernon R. Chumbley, federal prisoner.

Nor did the prosecutors' office escape in the blast of oratorical fury. Remus turned to Charles P. Taft II, who is directing the state's forces at the trial and snapped:

"These novices representing the prosecutor's office have been contaminated by such a discredited, hypocritical character as Franklin L. Dodge."

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 13.—John S. Berger, Los Angeles promoter and boyhood friend of George Remus, today instituted a damage action for $580,000 against Charles P. Taft II.

The suit filed in the Hamilton county court of common pleas, grew out of an indictment charging Berger with perjury resulting from his testimony on behalf of Remus who is on trial accused of the murder of his wife.

INSURGENT HOUSE
OF OKLAHOMA
DEFIES TROOPS

VOTES OUT SIX CHARGES OF IM-PEACHMENT AGAINST GOVERNOR

ALLEGED INTIMIDATION OF COM-MONWEALTH BY SUCH TROOPS

By DON A. HIGGINS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Oklahoma City, Dec. 13.—Defying troops and dispersment, the insurgent house of the extraordinary Oklahoma legislature met in the early morning today and voted out six charges of impeachment against Gov. Henry S. Johnston.

The charges, alleging intimidation of the commonwealth by troops, general incompetency, acts against the public good and conspiracy to extort money, now are ready for the senate court of impeachment.

Simultaneously, the house voted out three charges of impeachment against Harry B. Cordell, president of the state board of agriculture.

Impeachment charges were also voted against Chief Justice Fred P. Branson of the state supreme court. It was announced.

The senate, insurgent spokesmen said, would meet "somewhere in Oklahoma City" as soon as possible to carry out the threat that Johnston "will be impeached by Tuesday night."

The house held its unusual session from 2 A. M. to 7 A. M. on the eighth floor of a local hotel, long known as the "unofficial capitol" of Oklahoma.

It was not known where the senate would meet.

The six charges voted by the house insurgents today were:

1. Violated the peace and dignity of Oklahoma by the calling of troops.

2. Guilty of incompetency by reckless delegation of non-delegable powers to others.

3. Corruptly contracted for the services of Jose Alvarado, Mexican sharpshooter, as a special officer while Alvarado was under conviction of burglary and wanted for a Texas bank robbery.

4. Corruptly contracted for the services of Kirby Fitzpatrick as a state banking department attorney, paying Fitzpatrick $5,500 before the attorney discharged any duty.

5. Unlawfully issued a $7,900 deficiency certificate, to create positions not authorized by the legislature.

6. Feloniously conspired with one May Cline and one Mamie Hammonds (Mrs. G. O. Hammonds) and extorted from C. B. McCormick, a highway contractor, $1,412 in return for the payment of a claim McCormick held against the highway commission.

Charges against Cordell and Branson were not made public immediately.

The house expected to recess this morning after accomplishing its unusual act while the city slept. It deliberated in a crowded suite of rooms filled with tobacco smoke.

Troops which prevented the legislators from convening in the capitol yesterday and a temporary injunction which forbade the lower house from receiving impeachment charges drawn up by its investigating committee both failed to stop the insurgent movement.

A hearing was to be held in district court today on a motion to make permanent the temporary injunction granted the governor yesterday to forestall his opponents.

The city was quiet today despite the state of virtual martial law in which the capitol grounds had been held since early yesterday morning when Governor Johnston struck back at his foes by summoning three companies of guardsmen to block action of a legislature which he contended was illegally convened.

In this contention the governor had been at least partially upheld by the state supreme court, which ruled the legislature's actions void.

All day yesterday soldiers patrolled the capitol and guarded legislative and supreme court chambers to prevent activities against the governor.

In resorting to troops, Johnston followed a precedent set four years ago by Governor Jack Walton, who dispersed one session of the legisla-

BULLETS FIRED FROM A SPEED-

CITY HALL

Herrin, Ill., Dec. 13.—(U.P.)—Warfare broke out in Herrin again last night after "Bloody Williamson" county had enjoyed peace and quiet for almost a year.

Chief of Police John Stamm and Patrolman Elmer McCormick, brother of Mayor Marshall McCormick, were shot and seriously wounded by bullets fired from a speeding automobile. The car circled the city hall square twice. McCormick fell at the first circuit, and Stamm at the second. McCormick's condition was critical.

Neither of the wounded men could give any reason for the shootings.

Marion, Ill., Dec. 13.—After seven days of court labor, a jury was selected late yesterday to try Harvey Dungey, Fred Thomasson and Joe Booker, Birger gangsters, charged with the machine-gun murder of Lyle "Shag" Worsham, who was alleged to have "talked too much with the Sheltons"—rival gang.

Worsham was taken "for a ride" on the early morning of Sept. 17, 1926, the state charges, ejected into a deserted road, told him to "run for your life" and then cut down by machine gun fire. His body later was found burned in an abandoned barn.

"WICKY" HANSON
ENTERS PRISON

TO SERVE 5 TO 40 YEARS FOR
ROBBING FILLING STATION

Stillwater, Minn., Dec. 13.—(U.P.)—Art "Wicky" Hanson entered the state prison here late Monday to start serving a sentence of five to 40 years for robbery of a gasoline filling station in St. Paul last May.

Judge Carlton P. McNally in Ramsey county court ordered three indictments which are still pending against Hanson to be filed temporarily.

Two of the indictments are for murders of Mrs. Ruth Barrett and Mrs. Lillian Kooser, her sister, last August.

Hanson had confessed to the killing of James Barrett, husband of the slain woman, and was acquitted by a jury of that charge.

The third indictment pending is in connection with the burning of Barrett's automobile.

Hanson was guarded by six deputy sheriffs when brought to prison here from St. Paul.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Dec. 13.—

Former Governor Jack Walton, who set the precedent which Governor Henry S. Johnston followed in calling out troops in an attempt to prevent his impeachment, believes Johnston hasn't a chance of success.

"I had 300 national guardsmen and they impeached me," he said, "Governor Johnston hasn't got a chance with his 70."

Col. Chas Lindbergh
Hopped Off at Noon
on Way to Mexico City

LEAVES BOLLING FIELD IN HIS
"WE," SPIRIT OF ST.
LOUIS

LATTER HAD CARRIED HIM ON
EPOCHAL FLIGHT, NEW YORK TO PARIS

Bolling Field, Washington, Dec. 13.—(U.P.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh took off on a flight today with Mexico City his goal. He hopped off at 12:28 P. M.

He took off from Bolling field in his "We," the Spirit of St. Louis, which had carried him from New York to Paris and to many centers of the states.

In taking off he taxied down the field slowly, appearing to hesitate. He drove his plane squarely between the white flags which he had set up a short time before, and avoided the dangerous puddles which might have brought disaster at the start.

When his wheels left the ground, it was not with the customary Lindbergh style. He was apparently taking no chances with the heavy load and bad ground.

A large crowd which had gathered in spite of the short notice of departure plans, gasped but immediately was reassured when the plane sailed away low into the fog over the Potomac, adjoining the field.

When Lindbergh shot his wheels off the ground, he ran along for about 200 yards, not more than seven feet in the air.

He then put the plane into an altitude of between fifty and 100 feet which he maintained until he vanished over the river.

The commerce department plane, which started out with Lindbergh, returned to the field at 12:42 P. M.

The pilot, Ralph Lockwood, said Lindbergh cleared the Potomac flying low and then gained altitude until he was about 1,000 feet up. Lockwood's plane was making 95 miles an hour and Lindbergh sped out ahead of him at apparently about 100 miles an hour.

Lockwood accompanied Lindbergh only about 10 miles.

He said Lindbergh's plane appeared to be well balanced despite the heavy load, and the flight appeared to have started auspiciously.

He sailed slowly until about seven feet above the ground and then he shot up to about fifty. He took it slowly, not attempting his famous straight up-shoot.

Lindbergh expected to fly in a straight line to Galveston, Texas, then over the mountains of the Mexican border to Mexico City, which he hoped to reach in daylight hours tomorrow. He faced head winds and possible showers most of the way, but despite this hoped for a speed of between 80 and 95 miles an hour.

He planned to fly over no large expanse of water enroute, but pointed out that the cushions of his plane could float if he fell crossing a river. He had no life preserver and carried no parachute.

He had a week's rations of hard bread, soup tablets and chocolate and two quarts of water. He carried a rifle to shoot game if forced down on the desert.

Besides his flying kit over his regular suit he wore moccasins to shield him from the cold.

Lindbergh set off on his 2,000-mile proposed non-stop flight with as much nonchalance as he had shown when he jumped off for Paris from New York.

Only about an hour and a half before taking off, he notified the war department to advise the press of his impending flight. Meantime he got his motor tuned up, and while army officers whispered that the field was terrible for such a heavy load as he carried, he had the machine dragged onto the field and started off.

HOUSE PLODS
IN LEGISLATIVE
NEW MEASURES

SENATE HAS PREVENTED SEAT-
ING OF VARE AND SMITH

THE DEFICIENCY APPROPRIA-
TION BILL NOW BEFORE
UPPER HOUSE

By CARL D. GROAT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Dec. 13.—The mills of congress began today really to grind out grist in both houses.

While the house has plodded along with the legislative business for several days, the senate, still unorganized, has until now accomplished virtually nothing except to prevent the seating of Senators-elect Vare and Smith.

But today the senate began considering the deficiency appropriation—one of the essential though unromantic phases of the nation's business as done by congress. It had been hurried out of the appropriations committee in record time so the senate could have something to do besides twirl its thumbs and talk over its Vare-Smith troubles and the intricacies of getting at the truth of the Hearst Mexican expose.

The upper house planned during the day to ratify the states of republican and democratic committee assignments, after which its machinery will be geared to go on with the multitude of measures which committees must debate, dissect and return before the senate can vote on them.

The Reed (Mo.) committee was called to plan trials for Smith and Vare, accused of excessive election expenditures; but it was rather disconcerted at the thought that both senators so far have shown no inclination to avail themselves of the committee's investigating facilities.

The Reed (Pa.) committee, charged with investigating the Hearst documents alleging a Mexican plan to bribe four U. S. senators, meets Thursday. Meantime, there is much underground activity aimed at side-tracking a subpoena issued for Consul General Elias of New York, and thereby keeping improved Mexican-American relations from a new flurry. The Mexicans say they will be glad to let the committee know all they know about the Hearst documents—which they claim are forgeries—but they insist their evidence shall be on invitation, not on summons.

On the house side, consideration of the tax reduction measure continued. The democrats won an initial victory yesterday afternoon when they got a vote of further reduction of taxes of small corporations. The republicans, however, were planning to force a "record" vote, which, they predicted, would result in overturning this victory.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Encouraged by their victory in reducing corporation taxes, house democrats prepared today to seek abolition of all automobile and theater admission taxes.

Amendments will be presented for repeal of these taxes, and a vote should come during the day. The corporation tax reduction already voted cuts about $24,000,000 off the revenue, while the other proposed cuts would bring the total tax reduction to near $300,000,000, as compared to the $233,000,000 originally carried in the measure.

But republicans will challenge yesterday's democratic victory and they expressed confidence today they can reverse it if they get a "record" vote thereon.

The reductions affect small corporations. Under the amendment, the rate will be 5 per cent on corporations with incomes up to $7,000; 7 per cent on those with incomes up to $12,000, and 9 per cent on corporations with incomes up to $15,000, with an 11½ per cent flat rate for those above.

The amendment was accepted by a very close vote, 136 to 132, despite appeals of republican leaders that its adoption would be the opening wedge for considerable reductions that would cause a treasury deficit.

FARMERS OF STATE
LAUDED AS REAL
BUSINESS MEN

J. F. REED, PRESIDENT OF MIN-NESOTA FARM BUREAU FED-
ERATION, IN STATEMENT

MADE AT OPEN FORUM TALK AT
ST. PAUL ON SUNDAY
AFTERNOON

St. Paul, Dec. 13.—(U.P.)—Farmers of Minnesota were lauded as capable and efficient business men by J. F. Reed, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, in an open forum talk here Sunday.

Reed detailed the reasons why agriculture is in need of relief legislation, citing statistics and setting forth comparisons.

Agriculture has been left to shift for itself, Reed said.

"It is the duty of the government to pass laws that will give the farmer the same protection that other industries get," he declared.

He warned that "bread lines will be in evidence unless agriculture can be put on an equal basis with business, labor and industry."

Reed announced himself as an advocate of the new farm relief bill as carried forward by McNary, co-author of the McNary-Haugen bill, which was vetoed by President Coolidge.

"Nineteen twenty-one was the farm failure year, but since then the farmer has been gradually regaining his feet and entirely without assistance," he said.

"In 1924 there was a falling off of production to the extent of $43,000,000; in 1926, $34,000,000 and in 1927, $19,000,000. This condition is shown by the department of agriculture in its annual report.

"Water transportation is receiving the farmer's hearty support. The Mississippi, Great Lakes and St. Lawrence projects will mean a great saving to the farmer who is forced to ship his produce a long distance, for water transportation will cost him only one-tenth of the present rail cost."

In his defense of Minnesota's farmers, Reed said that while they have been denounced as incapable, they are in reality "the most capable and efficient in the world and are equal in business ability to any business men in any other occupation."

LEAVES BOLLING FIELD IN HIS "WE." SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS

LATTER HAD CARRIED HIM ON EPOCHAL FLIGHT, NEW YORK TO PARIS

Bolling Field, Washington, Dec. 13.—(U.P.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh took off on a flight today with Mexico City his goal. He hopped off at 12:28 P. M.

He took off from Bolling field in his "We," the Spirit of St. Louis, which had carried him from New York to Paris and to many centers of the states.

In taking off he taxied down the field slowly, appearing to hesitate. He drove his plane squarely between the white flags which he had set up a short time before, and avoided the dangerous puddles which might have brought disaster at the start.

When his wheels left the ground, it was not with the customary Lindbergh style. He was apparently taking no chances with the heavy load and bad ground.

A large crowd which had gathered in spite of the short notice of departure plans, gasped but immediately was reassured when the plane sailed away low into the fog over the Potomac, adjoining the field.

When Lindbergh shot his wheels off the ground, he ran along for about 200 yards, not more than seven feet in the air.

He then put the plane into an altitude of between fifty and 100 feet which he maintained until he vanished over the river.

The commerce department plane, which started out with Lindbergh, returned to the field at 12:42 P. M.

The pilot, Ralph Lockwood, said Lindbergh cleared the Potomac flying low and then gained altitude until he was about 1,000 feet up. Lockwood's plane was making 95 miles an hour and Lindbergh sped out ahead of him at apparently about 100 miles an hour.

Lockwood accompanied Lindbergh only about 10 miles.

He said Lindbergh's plane appeared to be well balanced despite the heavy load, and the flight appeared to have started auspiciously.

He sailed slowly until about seven feet above the ground and then he shot up to about fifty. He took it slowly, not attempting his famous straight up-shoot.

Lindbergh expected to fly in a straight line to Galveston, Texas, then over the mountains of the Mexican border to Mexico City, which he hoped to reach in daylight hours tomorrow. He faced head winds and possible showers most of the way, but despite this hoped for a speed of between 80 and 95 miles an hour.

He planned to fly over no large expanse of water enroute, but pointed out that the cushions of his plane could float if he fell crossing a river. He had no life preserver and carried no parachute.

He had a week's ration of hard bread, soup tablets and chocolate and two quarts of water. He carried a rifle to shoot game if forced down on the desert.

Besides his flying kit over his regular suit he wore moccasins to shield him from the cold.

Lindbergh set off on his 2,000-mile proposed non-stop flight with as much nonchalance as he had shown when he jumped off for Paris from New York.

Only about an hour and a half before taking off, he notified the war department to advise the press of his impending flight. Meantime he got his motor tuned up, and while army officers whispered that the field was terrible for such a heavy load as he carried, he had the machine dragged onto the field and started off.

HOUSE PLODS IN LEGISLATIVE NEW MEASURES

SENATE HAS PREVENTED SEATING OF VARE AND SMITH

THE DEFICIENCY APPROPRIATION BILL NOW BEFORE UPPER HOUSE

By CARL D. GROAT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Dec. 13.—The mills of congress began today really to grind out grist in both houses.

While the house has plodded along with the legislative business for several days, the senate, still unorganized, has until now accomplished virtually nothing except to prevent the seating of Senators-elect Vare and Smith.

But today the senate began considering the deficiency appropriation—one of the essential though unromantic phases of the nation's business as done by congress. It had been hurried out of the appropriations committee in record time so the senate could have something to do besides twirl its thumbs and talk over its Vare-Smith troubles and the intricacies of getting at the truth of the Hearst Mexican expose.

The upper house planned during the day to ratify the states of republican and democratic committee assignments, after which its machinery will be geared to go on with the multitude of measures which committees must debate, dissect and rehash before the senate can vote on them.

The Reed (Mo.) committee was called to plan trials for Smith and Vare, accused of excessive election expenditures; but it was rather disconcerted at the thought that both senators so far have shown no inclination to avail themselves of the committee's investigating facilities.

The Reed (Pa.) committee, charged with investigating the Hearst documents alleging a Mexican plan to bribe four U. S. senators, meets Thursday. Meantime, there is much underground activity aimed at side-tracking a subpoena issued for Consul General Elias of New York, and thereby keeping improved Mexican-American relations from a new flurry. The Mexicans say they will be glad to let the committee know all they know about the Hearst documents—which they claim are forgeries—but they insist their evidence shall be on invitation, not on summons.

On the house side, consideration of the tax reduction measure continued. The democrats won an initial victory yesterday afternoon when they got a vote of further reduction of taxes of small corporations. The republicans, however, were planning to force a "record" vote, which, they predicted, would result in overturning this victory.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Encouraged by their victory in reducing corporation taxes, house democrats prepared today to seek abolition of all automobile and theater admission taxes.

Amendments will be presented for repeal of these taxes, and a vote should come during the day. The corporation tax reduction already voted cuts about $24,000,000 off the revenue, while the other proposed cuts would bring the total tax reduction to near $300,000,000, as compared to the $233,000,000 originally in the measure.

But republicans will challenge yesterday's democratic victory and they expressed confidence today they can reverse it if they get a "record" vote thereon.

The reductions affect small corporations. Under the amendment, the rate will be 5 per cent on corporations with incomes up to $7,000; 7 per cent on those with incomes up to $12,000, and 9 per cent on corporations with incomes up to $15,000, with an 11½ per cent flat rate for those above.

The amendment was accepted by a very close vote, 136 to 132, despite appeals of republican leaders that its adoption would be the opening wedge for considerable reductions that would cause a treasury deficit.

REMUS SCORES FORMER DRY AGENT F. L. DODGE, JR.

TERMED HIM "BOLSTERED UP MASS OF NOTHINGNESS"

"KICKED OUT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE," SAYS REMUS

By PAUL W. WHITE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 13.—Eloquent-ly defending two friends who have been indicted on perjury charges during his trial on a charge of wife murder, George Remus today excoriated Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., former dry agent.

Dodge was termed a "bolstered up mass of nothingness, kicked out of the department of justice." Remus was pleading that Dodge was behind the indictments returned against John S. Berger of Los Angeles and Vernon R. Chumbley, federal prisoner.

Nor did the prosecutors' office escape in the blast of oratorical fury. Remus turned to Charles P. Taft II, who is directing the state's forces at the trial and snapped:

"These novices representing the prosecutor's office have been contaminated by such a discredited, hypocritical character as Franklin L. Dodge."

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 13.—John S. Berger, Los Angeles promoter and boyhood friend of George Remus, today instituted a damage action for $580,000 against Charles P. Taft II.

The suit filed in the Hamilton county court of common pleas, grew out of an indictment charging Berger with perjury resulting from his testimony on behalf of Remus who is on trial accused of the murder of his wife.

Seizure and destruction of 345 stills.

Arrest of 1,275 persons.

Recommendation of 1,305 persons for prosecution.

Confiscation of 56 automobiles valued at $20,745.

The figures were announced last yesterday by S. B. Qvale, northwest prohibition administrators since reorganization of the forces on July 1.

HAMMER FREELY USED IN FREE FOR ALL FIGHT

Chicago, Dec. 13.—(U.P.)—A free for all fight in which a hammer was freely used was pictured by police today as they investigated the death of Richard P. Colton, 35, attorney, whose body was found in a downtown office early this morning.

Two men were under arrest and a third was sought. A woman, wife of one of the suspects, and an 11-year-old boy also were held.

Police pieced together a story of a fight involving William Sweeney, official of a painters' union, and Frank and Harry McHugh, brothers, members of the union. The dispute started at a union meeting and afterwards all four went to Sweeney's office.

Colton's body, managled by fists and the hammer, and with marks on the throat indicating he had been choked, was found by a watchman hours later. Broken furniture in the office indicated the severity of the fight, in which, police believed, Sweeney had aided Colton against the other two.

Frank McHugh, his wife and his 11-year-old son were arrested at their home today after Colton's body had been identified by his bride of two months.

CHRISTIANSON DISAPPROVES OF FEDERAL SUBSIDIES

GOVERNOR GIVES AN ADDRESS
AT ST. PAUL MONDAY NIGHT

SAYS SUCH SUBSIDY "ENDANGERS
IDEAL OF STATEHOOD"
CONTEMPLATED

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 13.—(UP)—Disapproval of federal subsidies was expressed by Governor Theodore Christianson in an address here on Monday night.

Continuation of the federal government's scope of activity endangers the "ideal of statehood contemplated by the constitution," the governor told an audience at the Laymen's League session.

He declared that federal subsidies constitutes an attempt to "coerce the state into doing something which it would not do of its own volition."

The governor said he did not approve of it because, unless checked, it would "lead to the establishment of a great bureaucracy."

This bureaucracy would, he said, act through federal agents, inspectors and regulators to "shape the policy of the states in their local concerns, not according to the needs of each state, but according to the rigid, dogmatic and unchangeable theory of some inexperienced, newly hatched college graduate sitting on a petty throne 1,500 miles away, secure in the position of his little job because of civil service provisions which relieve him of that measure of responsibility which should control every public official and employee in a government by the people."

"It is too much to expect the abandonment of federal aid projects already undertaken and I am not advocating it," Governor Christianson said. "But let every man who believes the state should continue to be self-governing and self-respecting pray God and petition their congressmen to prevent the enactment of any more laws that give the federal government a lien on the state's sovereignty."

"If you want a thing well done, do it yourself. If you can't do it yourself, hire some one who is close enough to you so you can watch him while he is doing it. The way of progress and security in government, of freedom and democratic accomplishment lies in a strong local government backed up and operated by alert, vigilant citizens."

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 13.—(UP)—Instead of making fervid love to a 17-year old movie extra under a southern California moon in 1923, as charged in a $100,000 breach of promise suit, Harry K. Thaw, then "somewhere" in Philadelphia, he declared here today.

In answer to the complaint filed by Forest Hope Wall charging that Thaw proposed marriage at Laguna Beach, the Pittsburgh millionaire said he had never heard of that famous resort and made a guess that he was in the east at that time.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 13.—(UP)—A $100,000 damage suit, charging Harry K. Thaw proposed marriage to her and then left, was filed

Miss Wall charged the Pittsburgh millionaire wooed and won and left her at Laguna Beach in 1923. She then was 17 years old.

Thaw gave her an engagement ring, wrote to her often and sent her money, she alleged.

Miss Wall also asks $500 expenses for a trip she undertook in 1926 to gain entrance to Thaw's country estate near Winchester, Va.

She drove to Virginia at his request, she said, but Thaw refused to see her.

RIOT RUMBLINGS AT COURT SESSION

NEGRO SENTENCED TO DEATH
FOR MURDER OF WHITE
GIRL

Goldsbond, N. C., Dec. 13.—(UP)—Gunfire and riot rumblings marked the first Sunday court session ever held in North Carolina, when Larry Newsome, negro, was sentenced to death here Sunday for the murder of Buella Tedder, 15-year-old white girl.

Newsome's trial started Saturday, 48 hours after the body of the young girl was found in a tobacco patch near her Great Swamp home.

Five minutes after the Sunday session opened, Eric Tedder and William Tedder, father and brother of the murdered girl, walked into the crowded court room, put their hands on Newsome and started for the door with him.

"Get him—lynch him," the farmers in the court room shouted.

Police fired warning shots into the ceiling and spectators ran for cover. The two Tedders were arrested and handcuffed as Judge Henry A. Grady rapped for order with an automatic pistol which he kept beside him for the remainder of the trial.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty after being out 15 minutes and Newsome was sentenced to die in the electric chair Jan. 13.

It came to rest on the window sill. By carefully picking it up by the wings, the mosquito was placed in a small bottle for exhibition.

Henry Hoffmann also reports a mosquito winging and singing its way about his bedroom. Henry had to get up in the middle of the night to slay the ferocious insect, which after hibernating in the lace curtains for months, was thirsting for human blood.

TEN THOUSAND LAKES ASSOCIATION

BRAINERD has always been interested in the Ten Thousand Lakes Association from the days when R. R. Wise served so well as president of the association. It has done much to bring the lakes of Minnesota to the favorable attention of the world. Taking active part nowadays are these men of Brainerd and elsewhere, R. R. Gould, M. W. Pierce, of our city and Captain William H. Fawcett of Breezy Point Lodge, serving on the advisory committee.

Ten years ago the tourist business of Minnesota amounted to something like a million dollars. For the year 1927 it has exceeded $80,000,000 or more than the returns from several of our crops. This income has been a real factor in the growth and prosperity of the state, and has not come to us as a mere happening, but as the result of years of hard work and well directed publicity.

Minnesota needs more of the booster spirit among its citizens. We have heard a lot of things going to the bow-wows. Let's blow a different horn for a little while by prizing the blessings which we have and telling to others what we possess, not only in scenic attractions, but the finest agricultural land in the world, and industrial opportunities which will multiply many fold with the development of the St. Lawrence waterway and Mississippi river transportation facilities. And that is only a start on the story of our wonderful possessions.

As reported by the executive secretary, H. C. Hotelling, never in all its history has the Ten Thousand Lakes Association been in more substantial condition than today.

Last year was a banner year as far as the number of tourists was concerned. An increase of more than 200,000 over 1925 was noted for the 1926 season. That year was a peculiar one. Business was spotted, but taking the state as a whole, all past records were broken. And this was all accomplished in the face of conditions which were perhaps the most adverse in the history of the association, taking into consideration national business conditions and counter attractions as mentioned in the annual report of the body.

In the vast army of tourists who visit Minnesota each year are manufacturers, professional men, farmers and businessmen, representing the best of the citizenry of other commonwealths and it is needless to say that a number of these each year recognize the opportunities our state has to offer and as a result return here to live. Minnesota has not only directly gained many new citizens from this tourist army, but the men and women who spend their vacations here are doing much in their home communities to advertise the industrial and agricultural advantages which the state has to offer.

The work of the Ten Thousand Lakes Association is being watched by the nation. The system of tourist promotion work is said to be one of the most effective in existence. Now railroads, oil companies and other commercial concerns are supplementing the work of the association with publicity and advertising of their own.

The purpose of the Ten Thousand Lakes Association is to advertise Minnesota and its many advantages for the tourist, home seeker and investor. It is an axiom that the investor follows the tourist. It is operated under the supervision of the State Tourist Commissioner and is financed in part by an appropriation from the State Legislature and in part by money furnished it by counties, cities, individuals and firms.

Besides its work of advertising the state as a whole in national magazines, in newspapers and by distributing maps and booklets, the association acts as a clearing house in the distribution of material furnished it by cities and organizations who are advertising their own Minnesota localities. This service has made it possible for cities and districts to get distribution for their own booklets or other advertising material which would be not only difficult but in many cases prohibitive in cost for them to accomplish alone.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE

THAT circumstantial evidence is sometimes not of the best kind is related in a story told in True Story Magazine. Many a man has been convicted and sentenced on circumstantial evidence.

After a very celebrated murder trial in Maryland, some years ago, the jury disagreed. Eleven jurors were for conviction of the prisoner. One man held out.

"What's the matter with you?" the others asked him in exasperation. "Don't you see that this man must have killed that girl?"

The obstinate juror shook his head.

"No," he said, "it is just circumstantial evidence. I will never convict a man on circumstantial evidence. I'll tell you why."

"Once, when I was a truck farmer, on the eastern shore of Maryland, I owned a collie named Rover. I liked that dog. He was a sort of friend of mine, if you get what I mean."

"But all of a sudden I began to have trouble. Eggs were being stolen from my hen house. It got to be a very serious matter to me. Eggs were bringing 50 cents a dozen, even then, and I could not afford the loss. I would find the eggshells in the nests very often. Then one day I saw Rover sneaking out of the hen house, and when I went in, there were eggshells all over the place. I shot my dog and killed him."

"The next day every egg in my hen house was eaten, and the shells were all over the place."

"Well enough I knew then that Rover was innocent; I had executed an innocent friend. I started another investigation. Underneath the floor of an abandoned smoke house I found the home of a weasel, with a brood of half a dozen little weasels. The mother weasel had stolen my eggs."

"No, gentlemen, I will never convict on circumstantial evidence again!"

IT MAY BE THE SOLUTION

If Minnesota eventually adopts a reforestation policy of any magnitude it may be possible for the forestry department to supply all the Christmas trees needed in this state, and perhaps some for exportation, from the thinnings of the young forests.

A substantial reforestation program will solve the Christmas tree problem, as spruce trees, like certain vegetables, have to be planted close together and thinned later. Until such a policy can be adopted, however, we should exercise the greatest care in cutting our Christmas trees and cut them in such a way that the forest will not be injured.—Bemidji Pioneer.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

(© by Dodd, Mead & Company.)

Nero

A RED-HEADED boy, scarcely more than a child in years, handsome and gorgeously dressed, stood receiving the humble salutations of the Roman senate one day in 51 A. D. Nearby, forgotten and unnoticed, stood a plainly attired lad. The red-headed youth was Nero, newly adopted son of his great-uncle, Claudius, emperor of Rome. The other boy was Britannicus, only son of Claudius and rightful heir to the throne. The strange muddling of the two lads' true positions was due to Nero's mother, Agrippina.

Nero was grandnephew of Claudius. He was brought up as a child in poverty and neglect. But when weak, vacillating old Claudius mounted the throne, Agrippina won the emperor's half-imbecile affections and persuaded him to divorce his first wife and marry her. She then promptly poisoned the deposed wife and concentrated all her wiles into cajoling Claudius to declare Nero his heir instead of Britannicus. Having induced the emperor to make such public pledge and to compel the senate to accept Nero as future emperor, Agrippina poisoned Claudius and declared the sixteen-year-old Nero emperor. Later Britannicus was also killed to make the new ruler's claims more secure.

The first five years of the young monarch's reign were ideal. Guided by his mother, he made kind and righteous laws, conciliating the people and the army, and giving promise of a golden era for Rome. Nero, coached cleverly by his crafty old tutor, Seneca, showed forth only the lovable, kindly side of his nature; his violent temper, selfishness and evil propensities being wisely curbed. He was looked on as a model sovereign. But as time passed, he grew impatient at his mother's stern rule and longed to be absolute master. Her guidance irritated him. The two clashed repeatedly, and at last Nero proved himself Agrippina's true son as well as an instrument of "poetic justice" by having his mother assassinated.

Now, freed from all restraint, the man's true character asserted itself. He plunged into wild excesses, performing in the arena as a common charioteer, declaring himself the foremost singer and poet of the world, and treating the populace to original songs and plays. When any sought to check his mad whims he wasted little time or scruple in arranging for the offender's death. His wife, Octavia, was thus put out of the way, as in time were Seneca and other famous Romans. He had married an unscrupulous patrician woman, Poppea by name, divorcing her from Otho, her first husband, who later amply avenged himself for the outrage. Poppea urged Nero on to fresh crimes and dissipation, until at last he had so far exhausted every pleasure as to yearn for some absolutely new sensation. It was then that the idea occurred to him to set fire to Rome and to compose a grand epic song upon its destruction.

He followed out this barbarous plan with such success that three-fourths of the city was soon in ashes. The people, who had patiently borne his former caprices, were furious at this wanton cruelty. Rebellion was threatened. To appease them the frightened tyrant hit on a scheme that has made his name a term of loathing through all ages.

He declared that the Christians had set fire to the city, and, by way of punishment, murdered them by hundreds, hoping thus to shift the blame of the conflagration from his own guilty shoulders. It had always been Rome's policy to respect the religions of her conquered provinces, thereby pacifying the people of such lands and averting religious uprisings. But Nero saw no need for following out this plan as regarded the Christians. They were a sect of poor, unimportant folk, representing no land, and thus presenting no dangers of a possible insurrection. They had no mortal ruler nor kingdom; no opportunity to retaliate for wrongs done them. Their creed also commanded forgiveness of injuries and forbade vengeance.

Thus they were safe victims for the imperial despot.

But, by the very tortures and oppressions to which he subjected its believers the new faith endured and gained strength. The blood of its martyrs served only to fan its early, feeble spark into a light that was destined to illumine the whole world; until the once despised and crushed religion wholly superseded the Roman heathenism that had sought to destroy it, and made its center of government, by a strange irony of fate, in the very city where its first terrible persecutions had been enacted.

Nero's course was well-nigh run. In spite of his pretext that the Christians had set Rome afire, the people grew to hate him. He murdered Poppea, and in a fit of remorse plunged into newer crimes. Conspiracies and rebellions sprang up all over the empire. Otho at last marched against the tyrant who had robbed him of his wife. With him was Galba, governor of Spain. Nero fled, and, seeing himself on the point of capture, committed suicide.

Today he is chiefly remembered, not as poet or emperor, or even as debauchee, but by reason of his sin against the Christians and for the miraculous effect of his insane, futile effort to efface them from the earth.

TEN THOUSAND LAKES ASSOCIATION

BRAINERD has always been interested in the Ten Thousand Lakes Association from the days when R. R. Wise served so well as president of the association. It has done much to bring the lakes of Minnesota to the favorable attention of the world. Taking active part nowadays are these men of Brainerd and elsewhere, R. R. Gould, M. W. Pierce, of our city and Captain William H. Fawcett of Breezy Point Lodge, serving on the advisory committee.

Ten years ago the tourist business of Minnesota amounted to something like a million dollars. For the year 1927 it has exceeded $80,000,000 or more than the returns from several of our crops. This income has been a real factor in the growth and prosperity of the state, and has not come to us as a mere happening, but as the result of years of hard work and well directed publicity.

Minnesota needs more of the booster spirit among its citizens. We have heard a lot of things going to the bow-wows. Let's blow a different horn for a little while by prizing the blessings which we have and telling to others what we possess, not only in scenic attractions, but the finest agricultural land in the world, and industrial opportunities which will multiply many fold with the development of the St. Lawrence waterway and Mississippi river transportation facilities. And that is only a start on the story of our wonderful possessions.

As reported by the executive secretary, H. C. Hotaling, never in all its history has the Ten Thousand Lakes Association been in more substantial condition than today.

Last year was a banner year as far as the number of tourists was concerned. An increase of more than 200,000 over 1925 was noted for the 1926 season. That year was a peculiar one. Business was spotted, but taking the state as a whole, all past records were broken. And this was all accomplished in the face of conditions which were perhaps the most adverse in the history of the association, taking into consideration national business conditions and counter attractions as mentioned in the annual report of the body.

In the vast army of tourists who visit Minnesota each year are manufacturers, professional men, farmers and businessmen, representing the best of the citizenry of other commonwealths and it is needless to say that a number of these each year recognize the opportunities our state has to offer and as a result return here to live. Minnesota has not only directly gained many new citizens from this tourist army, but the men and women who spend their vacations here are doing much in their home communities to advertise the industrial and agricultural advantages which the state has to offer.

The work of the Ten Thousand Lakes Association is being watched by the nation. The system of tourist promotion work is said to be one of the most effective in existence. Now railroads, oil companies and other commercial concerns are supplementing the work of the association with publicity and advertising of their own.

The purpose of the Ten Thousand Lakes Association is to advertise Minnesota and its many advantages for the tourist, home seeker and investor. It is an axiom that the investor follows the tourist. It is operated under the supervision of the State Tourist Commissioner and is financed in part by an appropriation from the State Legislature and in part by money furnished it by counties, cities, individuals and firms.

Besides its work of advertising the state as a whole in national magazines, in newspapers and by distributing maps and booklets, the association acts as a clearing house in the distribution of material furnished it by cities and organizations who are advertising their own Minnesota localities. This service has made it possible for cities and districts to get distribution for their own booklets or other advertising material which would be not only difficult but in many cases prohibitive in cost for them to accomplish alone.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE

THAT circumstantial evidence is sometimes not of the best kind is related in a story told in True Story Magazine. Many a man has been convicted and sentenced on circumstantial evidence.

After a very celebrated murder trial in Maryland, some years ago, the jury disagreed. Eleven jurors were for conviction of the prisoner. One man held out.

"What's the matter with you?" the others asked him in exasperation. "Don't you see that this man must have killed that girl?"

The obstinate juror shook his head. "No," he said, "it is just circumstantial evidence. I will never convict a man on circumstantial evidence. I'll tell you why."

"Once, when I was a truck farmer, on the eastern shore of Maryland, I owned a collie named Rover. I liked that dog. He was a sort of friend of mine, if you get what I mean."

"But all of a sudden I began to have trouble. Eggs were being stolen from my hen house. It got to be a very serious matter to me. Eggs were bringing 50 cents a dozen, even then, and I could not afford the loss. I would find the eggshells in the nests very often. Then one day I saw Rover sneaking out of the hen house, and when I went in, there were eggshells all over the place."

"I shot my dog and killed him."

"The next day every egg in my hen house was eaten, and the shells were all over the place."

"Well enough I knew then that Rover was innocent; I had executed an innocent friend. I started another investigation. Underneath the floor of an abandoned smoke house I found the home of a weasel, with a brood of half a dozen little weasels. The mother weasel had stolen my eggs."

"No, gentlemen, I will never convict on circumstantial evidence again!"

IT MAY BE THE SOLUTION

If Minnesota eventually adopts a reforestation policy of any magnitude it may be possible for the forestry department to supply all the Christmas trees needed in this state, and perhaps some for exportation, from the thinnings of the young forests.

A substantial reforestation program will solve the Christmas tree problem, as spruce trees, like certain vegetables, have to be planted close together and thinned later. Until such a policy can be adopted, however, we should exercise the greatest care in cutting our Christmas trees and cut them in such a way that the forest will not be injured.—Bemidji Pioneer.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

(@ by Dodd, Mead & Company.)

Nero

A RED-HEADED boy, scarcely more than a child in years, handsome and gorgeously dressed, stood receiving the humble salutations of the Roman senate one day in 51 A. D. Nearby, forgotten and unnoticed, stood a plainly attired lad. The red-headed youth was Nero, newly adopted son of his great-uncle, Claudius, emperor of Rome. The other boy was Britannicus, only son of Claudius and rightful heir to the throne. The strange muddling of the two lads' true positions was due to Nero's mother, Agrippina. Nero was grandnephew of Claudius. He was brought up as a child in poverty and neglect. But when weak, vacillating old Claudius mounted the throne, Agrippina won the emperor's half-imbecile affections and persuaded him to divorce his first wife and marry her. She then promptly poisoned the deposed wife and concentrated all her wiles into cajoling Claudius to declare Nero his heir instead of Britannicus. Having induced the emperor to make such public pledge and to compel the senate to accept Nero as future emperor, Agrippina poisoned Claudius and declared the sixteen-year-old Nero emperor. Later Britannicus was also killed to make the new ruler's claims more secure.

The first five years of the young monarch's reign were ideal. Guided by his mother, he made kind and righteous laws, conciliating the people and the army, and giving promise of a golden era for Rome. Nero, coached cleverly by his crafty old tutor, Seneca, showed forth only the lovable, kindly side of his nature; his violent temper, selfishness and evil propensities being wisely curbed. He was looked on as a model sovereign. But as time passed, he grew impatient at his mother's stern rule and longed to be absolute master. Her guidance irritated him. The two clashed repeatedly, and at last Nero proved himself Agrippina's true son as well as an instrument of "poetic justice" by having his mother assassinated.

Now, freed from all restraint, the man's true character asserted itself. He plunged into wild excesses, performing in the arena as a common charioteer, declaring himself the foremost singer and poet of the world, and treating the populace to original songs and plays. When any sought to check his mad whims he wasted little time or scruple in arranging for the offender's death. His wife, Octavia, was thus put out of the way, as in time were Seneca and other famous Romans. He had married an unscrupulous patrician woman, Poppa, by name, divorcing her from Otho, her first husband, who later amply avenged himself for the outrage. Poppa urged Nero on to fresh crimes and dissipation, until at last he had so far exhausted every pleasure as to yearn for some absolutely new sensation. It was then that the idea occurred to him to set fire to Rome and to compose a grand epic song upon its destruction.

He followed out this barbarous plan with such success that three-fourths of the city was soon in ashes. The people, who had patiently borne his former caprices, were furious at this wanton cruelty. Rebellion was threatened. To appease them the frightened tyrant hit on a scheme that has made his name a term of loathing through all ages.

He declared that the Christians had set fire to the city, and, by way of punishment, murdered them by hundreds, hoping thus to shift the blame of the conflagration from his own guilty shoulders. It had always been Rome's policy to respect the religions of her conquered provinces, thereby pacifying the people of such lands and averting religious uprisings. But Nero saw no need for following out this plan as regarded the Christians. They were a sect of poor, unimportant folk, representing no land, and thus presenting no dangers of a possible insurrection. They had no mortal ruler nor kingdom; no opportunity to retaliate for wrongs done them. Their creed also commanded forgiveness of injuries and forbade vengeance.

Thus they were safe victims for the imperial despot. But, by the very tortures and oppressions to which he subjected its believers the new faith endured and gained strength. The blood of its martyrs, the sufferings of its followers served only to fan its early, feeble spark into a light that was destined to illumine the whole world; until the once despised and crushed religion wholly superseded the Roman heathenism that had sought to destroy it, and made its center of government, by a strange irony of fate, in the very city where its first terrible persecutions had been enacted.

Nero's course was well-nigh run. In spite of his pretext that the Christians had set Rome afire, the people grew to hate him. He murdered Poppa, and in a fit of remorse plunged into never-ending crimes. Conspiracies and rebellions sprang up all over the empire. Otho at last marched against the tyrant who had robbed him of his wife. With him was Galba, governor of Spain. Nero fled, and, seeing himself on the point of capture, committed suicide.

Today he is chiefly remembered, not as poet or emperor, or even as debauchee, but by reason of his sin against the Christians and for the miraculous effect of his insane, futile effort to efface them from the earth.

TRADE MAY TAKE SISLER AWAY FROM ST. LOUIS BROWNS

LOUGHRAN WITHSTANDS 15 ROUNDS WITH SLATTERY

MATTER UP IN AIR AS LEAGUE MAGNATES MEET

INTRIGUES INTEREST OF THE BASEBALL WORLD, FANS AND MANAGERS

BALL REPORTED WILLING TO SEND SISLER TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Dec. 13. — (UP)—A trade which would take George Sisler, some seasons ago rated as about the most useful ball player in the American league, away from the St. Louis Browns was in the air today as major league magnates, managers and majorities settled down to the second day of the annual winter meetings.

The national league opened its meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria, with little except routine matters to discuss but it was an impending trade in the junior circuit, involving the story of Phil Ball's club, which most intrigued the interest of the baseball world.

Ball was reported ready to send Sisler to the highest bidder, and the rumored trade for the erstwhile most valuable player overshadowed the formal affairs of the day.

President John Heydler's report, presented to the club owners of the national league, dealt with prosperity.

The league, said Heydler, had enjoyed the presence of more cash customers within its turnstiles than ever before during its 53 years of existence.

The steering committee, composed of Col. Jake Ruppert, Phil Ball, Bill Veeck, Barney Dreyfuss, and others, had spent a five hour session discussing the way to a peaceful outcome of all the troubles of organized baseball, as far, at least, as the major leagues were concerned.

Just what response the major leagues were to make to the challenge of the minors regarding the draft rules remained undecided. Between themselves, the two major circuits were friendly as ham and eggs.

While the national league owners were busy at the Waldorf, running through the formalities of the annual meeting, with a bit of chatter here about the three umpire system and a bit there about a new regulation to prevent "syndicate" baseball, Phil Ball, Connie Mack, Billy Evans, new business manager of the Indians, Comiskey on behalf of the White Sox, George Moriarty of the Detroit Tigers and others of the American league were going around and around the old trading post—every ear cocked for a seasonable bargain.

Evans was in the market for a center fielder, with a preference for Harry Rice of the Browns. Connie Mack would not refuse an outfielder himself.

The Sisler trade, however, was the hottest piece of gossip. Ball let it be known that George was available, if the proper offer were forthcoming. And with the necessity of a good deal of strengthening to offset the advantages of the New York Yankees, at least four American league managers were willing to listen to reason.

Although rumor had it that Ed Barnard was to be the subject of elaborate ceremony on the occasion of his formal induction into office as successor to Byron B. Johnson, the new president of the American league deplored the suggestion today, and said that the junior circuit would meet quietly tomorrow.

7 YEAR OLD BOY, LOST IN BLIZZARD, FROZEN TO DEATH

Lethbridge, Alta., Dec. 13. — (UP)—A seven year old boy who was missing since the blizzard in this region a week ago, was found dead last night.

George Bower discovered the frozen body of the victim, Johnny Huculak, Coalhurst schoolboy, in a strawstack on his farm.

The body was found about four miles from the Huculak boy's home. Indications are that he was lost in the blinding snow storm while on his way to the village schoolhouse.

It was apparent that the boy started for the shelter of the strawstack but fell exhausted within a few feet of it. He was scantly clad.

ST. OLAF DEFEATS ST. THOMAS 26-24

St. Paul, Dec. 13. — (UP) — The state college conference basketball season was auspiciously opened here last night.

A thrilling contest was presented on the St. Thomas court when St. Olaf defeated the Tommies, 26 to 24. It was a close game throughout. Ray Olson scored the winning field goal for the Oles in the last three minutes of play.

The other game played here was not so close but was featured by the excellent team play of Hamline's squad. The Pipers defeated St. Mary's of Winona, 54 to 23.

TILDEN, HUNTER LOST TO U. S. DAVIS CUP TEAM

New York, Dec. 13. — The loss of William Tilden and Francis T. Hunter from the ranks of the eligibles for the United States Davis Cup team leaves the United States Lawn Tennis Association with a problem.

Tilden announced he and Hunter would participate in the Wimbledon, Eng., and St. Cloud, France, tournaments despite the association decision to challenge in the American zone. He had made a previous announcement in which he said the American players should be sent abroad as early as possible and should challenge in the European zone.

Julian S. Myrick, chairman of the Davis Cup committee when informed of Tilden's decision to go abroad, said the committee was prepared to carry on the campaign for regaining the Davis Cup without Tilden.

William M. Johnston of San Francisco and Dick Williams of Philadelphia are the only veterans who are possibilities for the team, although they have not announced their decision to compete.

Censorship of Plays

By an act of 1833 no plays may be acted for hire in England until they have been submitted to the lord chamberlain. He may refuse to license them in whole or in parts. The official who reads them for the purpose of deciding is called the "examiner of stage plays." There is a fine of $150 for acting an unlicensed or prohibited play, and the theater in which it is presented forfeits its license.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Quite a tossing about of ring titles is under way in Madison Square Garden, but the public apathy towards the tossing process indicates to just what orry depths the fight game has fallen.

Time was when the changing of a championship was accompanied by loud cries, wine-bibbing, rotogravure photographs of the new titleholder being kind to his family, and what not.

At the moment, the announcement of a "winnah and new champeen" usually is greeted with a yawn and some such discouraging comment as: "What of it?"

It really makes very little difference whether Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo or Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia is known as light heavyweight champion of the world, perhaps, except to those gentlemen and those whose meal tickets they comprise.

A couple of other trick titles will be at stake in Madison Square Garden this week.

Ted Morgan, who has had the junior lightweight crown about long enough, will defend it for the second or third time, I am not sure which, against Joe Glick, the sullen-faced New York Hebrew.

At one time, Hebrew fighters held most of our worth-while ring championships outside the heavyweight division, where none of the race ever made the grade. Nowadays, it is not so.

Glick has been knocking at the junior lightweight door for a couple of years. For one thing, while not the fighter that Morgan is, I believe Glick is a natural junior lightweight, one who has no trouble making 130 pounds, whereas the champion is heavier.

The flyweight title should be safe for the Hebrews when Izzy Schwartz and Newsboy Brown get through with their scrap in the same ring Friday night.

Two championship bouts in a night is merely another example of how the "racket" has run down at the heels.

The flyweight title was in safe hands when Fidel LaBarba held it. That olive-skinned youngster could take good care of it. Only little Johnny Vacca of Boston had Fidel's number.

LaBarba is now a college boy, studying to be a doctor.

"What does he want to be a doctor for?" Gene Tunney asked one hot summer afternoon when several of us were loafing on the lawn of the Lake Villa training quarters.

"A doctor is at everybody's beck and call, out at all hours of the night, and at the very best only makes about $15,000 a year. He's just a public servant, that's all."

Tunney pointed out that if LaBarba continued in the ring, he could make as much in a night "as a doctor makes in a year."

Gene considered Fidel's quest of an education decidedly a waste of time.

New York, Dec. 13. — Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia is the world's light-heavyweight champion, no strings attached.

All the punches Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo had in his bag, and there were quite a few of them, could not knock off the crown adjusted on Loughran's head by the New York state athletic commission.

In 15 rounds of furious battling at Madison Square Garden last night Loughran withstood Slattery's sensational assault in the early rounds and fought on to win the referee's decision. It was the best fighting seen in the Garden this winter.

At the end there were many eminent boxing authorities who thought Slattery had won. Jimmy Bronson, who acted as Gene Tunney's chief second in both fights with Dempsey, thought Slattery deserved the decision. Bronson's opinion carries added prestige because he always has been a great booster for Loughran.

Pete Reilly, manager of Jack Delaney, who discarded the 175-pound title to enter the heavyweight ranks, said Slattery won the fight.

And not a few of the veteran boxing writers were inclined to think that Slattery outfought Loughran.

However, Tom Donohue, president of the National Boxing Association, which picked Slattery as its champion, was satisfied with the decision.

"The National Boxing Association recognized Loughran as the 175-pound champion as a result of his victory over Slattery," Donohue said.

"It was a great fight. Slattery perhaps landed the most punches, but Loughran carried the most steam."

Slattery weighed 165½ against Loughran's 173½. It was an unusually low weight for the Buffalo boy.

Fighting his first 15-round bout, Slattery surprised everyone with his stamina and endurance. Heretofore, he has been classed as a strictly six-round fighter.

Slattery went great early in the fight and many believe he would have won the decision if the bout had gone only 10 rounds.

The fight was about even at the end of the tenth, but Slattery wavered in the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth and lost those three rounds, although he finished strong.

Loughran has aspirations to the title of "the fighting champion." He already has signed to meet Leo Lomski, the Aberdeen, Wash., boxer, here on January 6, and is gunning for a bout with Jack Delaney. He may give Slattery a return bout shortly.

Anthropological Test Determines Parentage

Vienna.—The paternity of a child has been established to the satisfaction of a Vienna court by anthropological tests, made by Professor Reche of the University of Vienna clinic.

Examination and comparison of distinctive marks is the basis of the test. Only 50,000 persons out of 500,000 have identical "papillary grading," according to Doctor Reche. Of these only 10,000 will be found to possess heads of the same general shape. In the third test perhaps only 500 will show noses of similarity and hardly 100 of the number will have ears of the same type.

Fewer than 20 will show the same shaped eye and only five the same color of hair and eyes. Finally but one person remains whose fingers show papillary drawings similar to those of the child whose parentage is being sought.

Hogs Must Be Vaccinated to Live in Pennsylvania

Harrisburg, Pa.—All hogs shipped into Pennsylvania in the future, except those which are for immediate slaughtering, must be vaccinated against cholera under an edict of the Pennsylvania department of agriculture. The new edict, by which it is hoped hog cholera will be banished from the state, also provides that any swine which have been in the possession of a dealer or farmer for less than 30 days and are offered at either auction or private sale must be vaccinated.

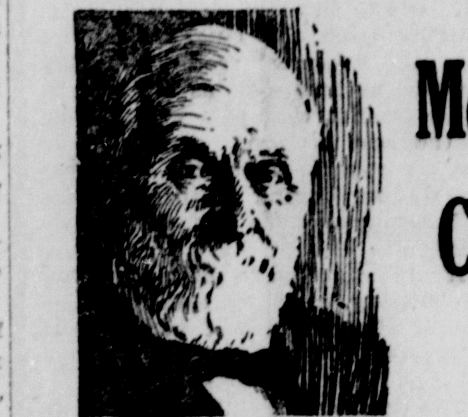

Icelander Swims Twelve Miles in Arctic Ocean

Oslo.—Swimming the English channel is mere play beside the feat of a young Icelander, Erling Palsen, a constable of Reykjavik, who swam 12 miles in the Arctic ocean with the water at a temperature of 32.8—barely above the freezing point. He wore three bathing suits.

It is 900 years since this swim from the island of Drangoe, in the Skagfjord, to the mainland has been accomplished and that was by the legendary outlaw, Grettir. Until Palsen swam the distance nobody believed the legend, for it was regarded as impossible for a human being to endure the freezing water for the four and one-half hours necessary to cover the 12 miles.

TRADE MAY TAKE SISLER AWAY FROM ST. LOUIS BROWNS

MATTER UP IN AIR AS LEAGUE MAGNATES MEET

INTRIGUES INTEREST OF THE
BASEBALL WORLD, FANS AND MANAGERS

BALL REPORTED WILLING TO SEND SISLER TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)
New York, Dec. 13. — (UP)—A trade which would take George Sisler, some seasons ago rated as about the most useful ball player in the American league, away from the St. Louis Browns was in the air today as major league magnates, managers and majorities settled down to the second day of the annual winter meetings.

The national league opened its meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria, with little except routine matters to discuss but it was an impending trade in the junior circuit, involving the story of Phil Ball's club, which most intrigued the interest of the baseball world.

Ball was reported ready to send Sisler to the highest bidder, and the rumored trade for the erstwhile most valuable player overshadowed the formal affairs of the day.

President John Heydler's report, presented to the club owners of the national league, dealt with prosperity.

The league, said Heydler, had enjoyed the presence of more cash customers within its turnstiles than ever before during its 53 years of existence.

The steering committee, composed of Col. Jake Ruppert, Phil Ball, Bill Veck, Barney Dreyfuss, and others, had spent a five hour session discussing the way to a peaceful outcome of all the troubles of organized baseball, as far, at least, as the major leagues were concerned.

Just what response the major leagues were to make to the challenge of the minors regarding the draft rules remained undecided. Between themselves, the two major circuits were friendly as ham and eggs.

While the national league owners were busy at the Waldorf, running through the formalities of the annual meeting, with a bit of chatter here about the three umpire system and a bit there about a new regulation to prevent "syndicate" baseball, Phil Ball, Connie Mack, Billy Evans, new business manager of the Indians, Comiskey on behalf of the White Sox, George Moriarty of the Detroit Tigers and others of the American league were going around and around the old trading post—every ear cocked for a seasonable bargain.

Evans was in the market for a center fielder, with a preference for Harry Rice of the Browns. Connie Mack would not refuse an outfielder himself.

The Sisler trade, however, was the hottest piece of gossip. Ball let it be known that George was available, if the proper offer were forthcoming. And with the necessity of a good deal of strengthening to offset the advantages of the New York Yankees, at least four American league managers were willing to listen to reason.

Although rumor had it that Ed Barnard was to be the subject of elaborate ceremony of the occasion of his formal induction into office as successor to Byron B. Johnson, the new president of the American league deplored the suggestion today, and said that the junior circuit would meet quietly tomorrow.

7 YEAR OLD BOY, LOST IN BLIZZARD, FROZEN TO DEATH

Lethbridge, Alta., Dec. 13.—(UP)—A seven year old boy who was missing since the blizzard in this region a week ago, was found dead last night.

George Bower discovered the frozen body of the victim, Johnny Huculak, Coalhurst schoolboy, in a strawstack on his farm.

The body was found about four miles from the Huculak boy's home. Indications are that he was lost in the blinding snow storm while on his way to the village schoolhouse.

It was apparent that the boy started for the shelter of the strawstack but fell exhausted within a few feet of it. He was scantily clad.

ST. OLAF DEFEATS ST. THOMAS 26-24

St. Paul, Dec. 13.—(UP)—The state college conference basketball season was auspiciously opened here last night.

A thrilling contest was presented on the St. Thomas court when St. Olaf defeated the Tommies, 26 to 24. It was a close game throughout. Ray Olson scored the winning field goal for the Oles in the last three minutes of play.

The other game played here was not so close but was featured by the excellent team play of Hamline's squad. The Pipers defeated St. Mary's of Winona, 54 to 23.

TILDEN, HUNTER LOST TO U. S. DAVIS CUP TEAM

New York, Dec. 13.—The loss of William Tilden and Francis T. Hunter from the ranks of the eligibles for the United States Davis Cup team leaves the United States Lawn Tennis Association with a problem.

Tilden announced he and Hunter would participate in the Wimbledon, Eng., and St. Cloud, France, tournaments despite the association decision to challenge in the American zone. He had made a previous announcement in which he said the American players should be sent abroad as early as possible and should challenge in the European zone.

Julian S. Myrick, chairman of the Davis Cup committee when informed of Tilden's decision to go abroad, said the committee was prepared to carry on the campaign for regaining the Davis Cup without Tilden.

William M. Johnston of San Francisco and Dick Williams of Philadelphia are the only veterans who are possibilities for the team, although they have not announced their decision to compete.

Censorship of Plays

By an act of 1833 no plays may be acted for hire in England until they have been submitted to the lord chamberlain. He may refuse to license them in whole or in parts. The official who reads them for the purpose of deciding is called the "examiner of stage plays." There is a fine of $150 for acting an unlicensed or prohibited play, and the theater in which it is presented forfeits its license.

SPORTSMATTER

Quite a tossing about of ring titles is under way in Madison Square Garden, but the public apathy towards the tossing process indicates to just what sorry depths the fight game has fallen.

Time was when the changing of a championship was accompanied by loud cries, wine-bibbing, rotogravure photographs of the new titleholder being kind to his family, and what not.

At the moment, the announcement of a "winnah and new champeen" usually is greeted with a yawn and some such discouraging comment as: "What of it?"

It really makes very little difference whether Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo or Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia is known as light heavyweight champion of the world, perhaps, except to those gentlemen and those whose meal tickets they comprise.

A couple of other trick titles will be at stake in Madison Square Garden this week.

Ted Morgan, who has had the junior lightweight crown about long enough, will defend it for the second or third time, I am not sure which, against Joe Glick, the sullen-faced New York Hebrew.

At one time, Hebrew fighters held most of our worth-while ring championships outside the heavyweight division, where none of the race ever made the grade. Nowadays, it is not so.

Glick has been knocking at the junior lightweight door for a couple of years. For one thing, while not the fighter that Morgan is, I believe Glick is a natural junior lightweight, one who has no trouble making 130 pounds, whereas the champion is heavier.

The flyweight title should be safe for the Hebrews when Izzy Schwartz and Newsboy Brown get through with their scrap in the same ring Friday night.

Two championship bouts in a night is merely another example of how the "racket" has run down at the heels.

The flyweight title was in safe hands when Fidel LaBarba held it. That olive-skinned youngster could take good care of it. Only little Johnny Vacca of Boston had Fidel's number.

LaBarba is now a college boy, studying to be a doctor.

"What does he want to be a doctor for?" Gene Tunney asked one hot summer afternoon when several of us were loafing on the lawn of the Lake Villa training quarters.

"A doctor is at everybody's beck and call, out at all hours of the night, and at the very best only makes about $15,000 a year. He's just a public servant, that's all."

Tunney pointed out that if LaBarba continued in the ring, he could make as much in a night "as a doctor makes in a year."

Gene considered Fidel's quest of an education decidedly a waste of time.

BRAINERD HIGH SCHOOL, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1927

NUMBER 13

STUDENTS HEAR TWO SPEAKERS ONE DAY

The student body enjoyed two interesting speakers last Tuesday morning.

Mr. Arnold, of Anoka, spoke in the afternoon on the advantages of staying in the smaller towns, and of the possibilities of Minnesota as an advancing state in the union. He exhorted the younger folks to stay in the smaller towns, and especially on the farms, stating that they would have a much better chance for success if they did so. He deplored the fact that so many young people move to the larger cities, stating that a great many of them fail there whereas they would have succeeded if they had remained in their home towns. "With land becoming more and more scarce," Mr. Arnold said, "it will pay to hold on to any land we have and profit by it later, when the demand increases."

Mr. Falconer, of the postal department, gave a short talk the first half hour on how to wrap packages for the Christmas season, and of the various ways in which packages can be insured to make them more certain of a safe and speedy delivery. Using a dummy as an illustration, he showed just how a bundle should be wrapped and addressed. The common faults were explained and their remedies given. The annual plea that packages be sent early to avoid confusion concluded Mr. Falconer's talk. He spoke so well even such a practical subject as wrapping packages was made interesting.

Examinitis

Examinitis is a disease very common among students; some are immune to it. Vaccination ineffective. CAUSE—

Due to bacilli of procrastination. Implanted at the beginning of term, lie dormant for months, sudden awakening near end of term. Bacilli prevalent on scholastic premises. Very infectious.

SYMPTOMS—

General excitement and great fear. Mental depression and gloom, as though a cloud had settled over patient.

Gone feeling, extending over frontal, parietal and occipital regions. Sensation of weakness and sinking in pit of stomach.

Brains feel swollen, too large for cranium.

Marked tendency to early rising, but late retiring.

Abnormal ambition; sudden mania for cramming.

Loss of appetite, craving for stimulants; strong coffee.

Sensation in bed as though he or she were sinking deep down.

Sighs and groans—worse on reflection of condition.

Confusion of mind as if intoxicated; wild, wandering feeling.

DIAGNOSIS—

This disease is peculiar in that all the symptoms are present, thus facilitating diagnosis.

PROGNOSIS—

Very severe onset; periods of relief at intervals, during second week as inflamed brain cells function and relax. At end of second week patient revives, takes new interest in life.

COMPLICATIONS—

Mental Relapse—This may occur anywhere from second week to a month after attack subsides. Close watch must be given, as patient often succumbs to this.

PROPHYLAXIS—Very desirable, but a condition very difficult and almost impossible to obtain.

Patient must have absolute quietness—no disturbance whatever. Proper light and good ventilation. One meal daily, served in quiet of patient's room. Light diet—stimulating drinks.

However, these all tend to excite bacilli and thus encourage progress of disease; therefore the most satisfactory and immediate relief is experienced by three weeks' removal from school premises.—Exchange.

Christmas vacation starts Friday, the Twenty-third.

Semper Paratus Hold Second Business Meeting

The Semper Paratus club held their second business meeting on Friday instead of Thursday morning. Quite a number of the members were there; in fact, nearly all of them were. Dues had not been coming in very rapidly, so a time limit was set for them. They must be paid before Christmas or the members who he dropped from the club (the ones who do not pay). As Miss Taylor said, we certainly don't want to be so unfortunate as to lose some of our members, so everyone should try to pay. Committees were appointed to take care of the program for the next meeting, and to arrange for some kind of party after Christmas. A program had been prepared as follows:

Piano solo—Dorothy Fox.

Reading—Marjorie Oberster.

Piano solo—Dorothy Fox.

After this program, the meeting adjourned. A few members remained in the gym to hear William McClellan play on the piano.

Book Review—"How to Study"

The students of Brainerd high ought to be very much interested in this book, written by George F. Moore Swain. It is just a small book but it contains a great deal of wisdom that could be made use of by most of us. The five main headings under which the book is written are as follows:

1. Proper Mental Attitude.
2. Studying Understandingly.
3. System.
4. Mental Initiative.
5. Habits of Work.

These are all explained fully, and make us wonder what is so hard about studying after all.

Other school papers contain poems which ought to be interesting to most of us. This is one that almost everyone could think about seriously:

If this world followed you—
Followed to the letter—
Would it be a nobler world,
All deceit and falsehood hushed
From it altogether?

Malice, selfishness, and lust,
Banished from beneath the crust
Covering human hearts from view—
Tell me, if it followed you,
Would the world be better?

Also, another of the humorous type could have been read understandingly by Roger Callahan last year, and even this year there are some little Freshies who might be interested.

Blessings on you, little man,
Freeman lad of three feet ten,
With thine elephantine ears
And thine age of thirteen years.

And the white head, whiter yet
Bleached by Sophomores thou hast met.

From my heart I wish thee joy
For I was once a Freshman boy.

An appropriate poem for this week is "Snowbound." Songs we would love to sing, knowing that they suited the season, are "The Flowers That Bloom in the Spring," "Stars of the Summer Night," or "The Last Rose of Summer."

The glass in Miss Gipson's door was accidentally broken last week.

A new system is being used for the benefit of those who carry their lunch. They have been asked to eat in the large assembly, and after that go up to the gym where Miss Reinertson has charge of them and sees to it that they have sufficient exercise.

Published on Account of Cold Weather

It was the early part of December, 1927; the temperature had fallen sharply. A flighty, piping wind, laden with snowflakes, beat about the town. It brought back old memories when I helped Paul Bunyan log off Minnesota the year after the Two Winters. We had winter all summer and then in the fall it turned colder. This happened right after Paul had built the Great Lakes, and that winter they froze clear to the bottom. They never would have thawed out if Paul had not chipped out the ice and hauled it out on shore for the sun to melt it. An incident that always comes back to me was when Big Joe, the cook, set the boiling coffee pot on the stove and it froze so quick the ice was hot.

WEATHER FORECAST

The weather for Brainerd and vicinity for tonight and Wednesday is colder in S. E. portion. Washington school, on Sec. 37 extreme cold in corridor due to frequent air currents from West, East and Front. Warmer in lower regions, except room left from front entrance, subject to cold air flow.

FOOTBALL MEN RECEIVE LETTERS

At noon today the men receiving letters for football during the past season were presented with their "Bs" by Coach Kasch.

The boys were given full honors after a short program on which was singing by the student body, Miss O'Brien leading and piano accompaniment by Ed. Tom O'Brien. Mr. Cobb gave a short talk and Mr. Kasch retold the events of the season in brief before giving the letters. Miss Kathleen Early, vice-president of the Senior class presented according to tradition. Billy Johnstone finished off the ritual with timed hollerings from the crowd.

The "Bs" this year are on a blue background with a woolly white letter. Many of the fellows received their last this year. The seniors were: Creger, Barnes, LaCourse, Welliver, Greener, Hanson, Ellison, Buscher, and W. Hautala.

Mixed Grades Select Leaders for the Year

The election of class officers Friday morning, with the following results:

President—Lyle Mayo.
Vice President—Oren Gillette.
Secretary—Alice Olson.
Treasurer—Evelyn Johnson.

English IV students are having book reports again. As each class reports on a different thing it would take several pages to write about it, so this is enough.

ALUMNI

Margaret Helgeson '26, who is taking Nurse's Training at the Ancker hospital in Duluth, was visiting home for a few days last week. Bartley Eckholm '26, who is attending the University of Minnesota this year is home for a vacation. "Bud" is spending his holidays wisely; he is employed at the Fidelity store, where he formerly worked while home.

Mrs. E. L. Orth visited Calvin at Macalester college, over the week end.

Angela Untereker '26, a student of the St. Cloud Teacher's college will be at home for a little while due to illness. "Ann" may resume her studies again later in the year.

Katherine Nelson '27, in acting as assistant up at B. H. S. for an indefinite period.

Rooters Club Practices Yells in Gymnasium

The Rooter club met in the gym Thursday at 3:30 to practice cheering, led by Billy Johnstone and Edith Titus. Several of the old yells were practiced and also a few new ones, one of which, introduced by Mr. Elden, proved especially interesting. It consists of only three words but as Shakespeare said, "Brevity is the soul of wit." Some rooters expressed the desire to sing but the suggestion wasn't carried out.

There is a very large membership, but it is hoped that it will be increased. Anyone wishing to join should hand in his name to either of the cheer leaders.

Extra! Swifticide! Extra

The aquarium in Miss Laipple's Biology room was the scene of one of the school's most famous scandals. The most important character in this scandal is a slow moving salamander supposed to be a descendant of the now extinct dinosaurs. The swift, a much smaller and quicker reptile than its assassin, was sleeping in a corner of the aquarium when he was awakened by a slight blow on his tail. After quite a thrilling fight the victorious salamander slowly proceeded to swallow his victim, it taking him about four hours to do the job.

Who, What and Where

The Freshmen held a meeting last Tuesday in Miss Gipson's room. They decided to draw up a constitution. A committee, of which Alice Nolan is chairman, was appointed to take charge of this.

They also planned to hold a sleigh-ride party, but the date was not decided upon.

Miss Sundberg's General Science classes have been making health posters. The best posters were made by the following: Douglas Flansburg, Janet Kampmann, Alice Nolan, and Arden Miller. Janet's and Alice's posters were quite large, with many health essentials. Arden's and Douglas' posters were smaller and were drawn by hand, and no doubt they spent quite a great deal of time making the posters.

The Brainerdian plays, under the able supervision of Miss O'Brien and Miss Olson, have proceeded rapidly. Judging from the laughter issuing from the rehearsal rooms, the play must be as humorous as last year's.

We predict that this will be one of the best programs of the year and we hope to have your co-operation in the buying of tickets so as to help put over our annual successfully.

If you do not go to these plays you are missing what we think will be one of the year's best and largest activities.

The Commercial club postponed its meeting until Wednesday, Dec. 14, when they will have a musical program and a tea.

The basketball game with Pequot which was to have been played Monday, was postponed until Tuesday because of cold weather.

The French club was to have held its second meeting Monday night but it was decided that they wait for warmer weather.

In Home Training the students are using note-books in which they mount pictures of their favorite homes and rooms.

ARMORED SKELETON FOUND IN COLORADO

Believed to Be Officer of Coronado's Expedition.

Fort Morgan, Colo.—A skeleton, believed to be a Spanish officer of Coronado's expedition because of the kind of armor in which it was encased, was recently unearthed near La Junta, Colo., by M. O. Davis and Earl Scarlett, who were digging and searching for Indian relics.

The skeleton was found in a sitting position, with knees up against the chest, the way Indians buried their dead, but by the armor around the skeleton it is believed it was a Spanish officer.

The skeleton may have been identified with Coronado's expedition or he may have been an officer in Villazur's expedition in 1720, which was completely annihilated by the Indians.

With the skeleton were found parts of a lance, the barrel of a gun, ivory emblems, a number of blue and white beads, and an old-time bullet ball with a hole through the center for stringing on a thong.

The site where the skeleton was found was debatable ground in the conflicts between France and Spain.

The land in southern Colorado was the scene of many battles after the coming of Coronado's expedition in 1540, and his attempt to civilize New Mexico resulted in the migration of the Indians into southern Colorado.

Spanish officers were often assigned to round up these runaway Indians, and it is possible that the Spanish officer whose skeleton was discovered was one sent on such a mission, and that he was killed in service.

VOLUME 6

BRAINERD HIGH SCHOOL, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1927

NUMBER 13

STUDENTS HEAR TWO SPEAKERS ONE DAY

The student body enjoyed two interesting speakers last Tuesday morning.

Mr. Arnold, of Anoka, spoke in the afternoon on the advantages of staying in the smaller towns, and of the possibilities of Minnesota as an advancing state in the union. He exhorted the younger folks to stay in the smaller towns, and especially on the farms, stating that they would have a much better chance for success if they did so. He deplored the fact that so many young people move to the larger cities, stating that a great many of them fail there, whereas they would have succeeded if they had remained in their home towns. "With land becoming more and more scarce," Mr. Arnold said, "it will pay to hold on to any land we have and profit by it later, when the demand increases."

Mr. Falconer, of the postal department, gave a short talk the first half hour on how to wrap packages for the Christmas season, and of the various ways in which packages can be insured to make them more certain of a safe and speedy delivery. Using a dummy as an illustration, he showed just how a bundle should be wrapped and addressed. The common faults were explained and their remedies given. The annual plea that packages be sent early to avoid confusion concluded Mr. Falconer's talk. He spoke so well even such a practical subject as wrapping packages was made interesting.

Examinitis

Examinitis is a disease very common among students; some are immune to it. Vaccination ineffective. CAUSE—

Due to bacilli of procrastination. Implanted at the beginning of term. Lie dormant for months, sudden awakening near end of term. Bacilli prevalent on scholastic premises. Very infectious.

SYMPTOMS—
General excitement and great fear.
Mental depression and gloom, as though a cloud had settled over patient.

Gone feeling, extending over frontal, parietal and occipital regions.
Sensation of weakness and sinking in pit of stomach.

Brains feel swollen, too large for cranium.
Marked tendency to early rising, but late retiring.

Abnormal ambition; sudden mania for cramming.
Loss of appetite, craving for stimulants; strong coffee.

Sensation in bed as though he or she were sinking deep down.
Sighs and groans—worse on reflection of condition.

Confusion of mind as if intoxicated; wild, wandering feeling.

DIAGNOSIS—
This disease is peculiar in that all the symptoms are present, thus facilitating diagnosis.

PROGNOSIS—
Very severe onset; periods of relief at intervals, during second week as inflated brain cells function and relax. At end of second week patient revives, takes new interest in life.

COMPLICATIONS—
Mental Relaxation—This may occur anywhere from second week to a month after attack subsides. Close watch must be given, as patient often succumbs to this.

PROPHYLAXIS—Very desirable, but a condition very difficult and almost impossible to obtain.

Patient must have absolute quietness—no disturbance whatever. Proper light and good ventilation. One meal daily, served in quiet of patient's room. Light diet—stimulating drinks.

However, these all tend to excite bacilli and thus encourage progress of disease; therefore the most satisfactory and immediate relief is experienced by three weeks' removal from school premises.—Exchange.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

Oh, Miss Tornstrom, I can't find my report card. I've looked everywhere!

What? Do we have a quiz today? Miss Bowers sent me, Miss Tornstrom, she said that—

Down at the Eighth Street crossing there was a big freight train. It wasn't my fault. The fellow across the aisle did it.

I didn't do it on purpose. I didn't hear the assignment.

BRAINONIAN PLAYS ARE PROGRESSING

Rehearsals for the Brainonian Plays, which will be staged December 21st, are coming along nicely, according to the latest reports. Everyone has at last memorized his lines and things are going through with a bang. The two plays this year are "A Scene in a Florist Shop" and "A Girl Wanted," both snappy numbers—something that you'll want to see.

The casts were selected from the school at large and are showing talent in the art of spoken drama, and what's more, in this case—pep!

The Black Boys of the Minstrel Show have been practicing in the dark, so our opinion on this is perhaps based on former reputation; however—we'll say they've got the stuff.

Looking over the press notices of former Brainonian productions, we see: Who Kissed Barbara? Excellent!

The Two Dicks. Yes!
The Dress Rehearsal. Very good!
Gassed. Up and Up!
Cousin Julia's Jade Ear Ring! Better Yet.

And we'll put a punch in tradition by requesting that last.
And whispers are out that the Brainonian Annual of '28 is also One Up! Why Not?

Armored Vests Sold to French Statesmen

Paris.—Counts of mail that flatten bullets and turn the points of daggers are back in favor, thanks to the gunnery and the spirit of unrest.

Dozens of French "armored" men sell these secret protections and two, at least, specialize in them. Statesmen and even criminals are among the customers of these shops which deal principally in old armor and armor for collectors and make ancient war costumes for the operas and theaters.

The "secret vest" most used is of small, finely-tempered chrome steel scales. The usual form is a close-fitting shirt that reaches from just below the collar line to well below the waist. It weighs five and one-half pounds and is quite flexible. The chain type is made of an infinite number of small steel links woven into a mesh.

A less elaborate protection is a very slightly overlapping set of scales sewed inside an ordinary vest to give limited protection. This form is lighter and cheaper. A mail shirt costs about $100 and the vest lining about $20.

NO FURTHER ARRESTS MADE

A. H. Proctor, Former Bank Cashier, Sees But Few People

WIFE VISITS HIM DAILY

Money Recovered, $10,500, Now in Safety Deposit Box First National of Brainerd

No arrests had up to noon today been made by the sheriff's department here of the four bandits who held up the bank and escaped with $36,000 in cash.

A. H. Proctor, cashier of the bank at the time of the robbery and who confessed to authorities Sunday afternoon a few hours after his arrest to being an accessory to the robbery held out again today to seeing anyone except his wife and children. During the short time he has been confined in his cell at the county jail he is becoming a changed man. He appears listless and resigned to fate. He has a harried look and has been unable to eat.

Officials stated that the bank is in good condition and that there is absolutely no cause for alarm.

Reports to the effect that Proctor's share of the robbery was $15,000 and that he was holding out were neither denied or confirmed this morning by Mr. Brown.

"If such is the case we do not know about it," said Mr. Brown. "All we know is that we are in the possession of $10,500 recovered when Proctor directed us to its hiding place following his arrest."

H. W. McKinnon and Irlie Mellett, of the State Bureau of Criminal Identification and Apprehension yesterday offered their services on the case. The officials working on the case thanked them for their offer but informed them that they had the situation as well in hand as was possible.

Restless, hardly able to gain a bit of sleep, and eating very little, Proctor has refused to see any one in his cell, except his wife. She visited him Monday evening, conferring for a couple of hours.

She again visited him at noon yesterday and remained half an hour and today talked over plans with him.

Proctor asked the sheriff, Claus A. Theorin, to refuse admission to all visitors except his wife and family. Last night he was very restless and nervous and asked the sheriff at midnight for a magazine so he could read and compose his nerves.

Proctor's case will be presented to a special grand jury. The money recovered, $10,500, all in nicely packed bundles, whose location was divulged by Proctor, was counted and checked up by the authorities and is now in the safekeeping of the First National bank of Brainerd to be presented as an exhibit at the grand jury investigation which will begin in the near future.

ARTIST RE-ENACTS KOENIGSKINDER

VISUALIZED ACTION

Displayed Pianistic Ability as Well as Remarkable Dramatic Power

Ernest Boehmer delighted his audience at the Saturday Musical club with the music drama Koenigskinder. This play, a fairy opera was written by Ernest Rosmer and music by C. Humperdinck. The opera, though it has a German setting was written in America, and first produced on the New York stage, with Madame Geraldine Farrar singing the role of the Goose-girl.

Koenigskinder is truly a fairy tale with its gay brilliant scenes, and its fairy prince but, even a fairy story may end tragically, and this we find true to the Koenigskinder. However it gives this drama a marvelous range of music, from the fairy tones to the tragic minor chords.

In his operologue, the reading of the drama Koenigskinder to music might well be said, Mr. Boehmer's presentation was superior to an actual performance. By omitting the dazzling stage, which has a tendency of dimming comprehension of details, the artist has succeeded in developing a presentation of the music drama which enables everyone to enter more deeply into its understanding and to enjoy its beauty.

Through his ability of visualizing the action of the play he stimulates the imagination of his audience in such a way that the full beauty of the drama may be enjoyed.

Not only did the artist show his remarkable dramatic power but, he displayed marvelous pianistic ability as well. Mr. Boehmer's talents combined with a most pleasing personality and, beautiful modulated speaking voice enabled him to create the proper atmosphere for the presentation of his play.

Ernest Boehmer is the originator of the Operologue. He has created by it a medium by which the opera which remains accessible to a comparatively few may be enjoyed and appreciated by a vastly greater number.

Quoted from the Music Courier Weekly Review of the World's Music "Under no circumstances must Ernest Boehmer's Operologue be confounded with the so called "Lecture Recital" because his way of re-producing such art works far from hampering the emotional faculties of the underlying drama, on the contrary, enhance and intensify the effect to such a degree as to hold the audience spellbound and in breathless attention, throughout."

NO FURTHER ARRESTS MADE

National of Brainerd

No arrests had up to noon today been made by the sheriff's department here of the four bandits who held up the bank and escaped with $36,000 in cash.

A. H. Proctor, cashier of the bank at the time of the robbery and who confessed to authorities Sunday afternoon a few hours after his arrest to being an accessory to the robbery held out again today to seeing anyone except his wife and children. During the short time he has been confined in his cell at the county jail he is becoming a changed man. He appears listless and resigned to fate. He has a harried look and has been unable to eat.

Officials stated that the bank is in good condition and that there is absolutely no cause for alarm.

Reports to the effect that Proctor's share of the robbery was $15,000 and that he was holding out were neither denied or confirmed this morning by Mr. Brown.

"If such is the case we do not know about it," said Mr. Brown. "All we know is that we are in the possession of $10,500 recovered when Proctor directed us to its hiding place following his arrest."

H. W. McKinnon and Irie Mellett, of the State Bureau of Criminal Identification and Apprehension yesterday offered their services on the case. The officials working on the case thanked them for their offer but informed them that they had the situation as well in hand as was possible.

Restless, hardly able to gain a bit of sleep, and eating very little, Proctor has refused to see any one in his cell, except his wife. She visited him Monday evening, conferring for a couple of hours.

She again visited him at noon yesterday and remained half an hour and today talked over plans with him.

Proctor asked the sheriff, Claus A. Theorin, to refuse admission to all visitors except his wife and family. Last night he was very restless and nervous and asked the sheriff at midnight for a magazine so he could read and compose his nerves.

Proctor's case will be presented to a special grand jury. DAIRY FACTS

BIG FACTORS IN PRODUCING MILK

Because of the prevailing high prices of feeds much stress has been laid on weeding out the poor cows and keeping only those that produce at a profit. "This is sound policy, only if the cows have been properly fed and cared for," states E. A. Gauntt, assistant dairy specialist at the New Jersey College of Agriculture.

"Two factors must be considered in milk production, namely, inherited ability of the cow to produce milk and feed and care. The importance of proper feeding was proved recently by the Minnesota experiment station, which purchased four poor cows from a member of a cow-testing association. This man thought he had fed his cows properly. He bought large quantities of mill feeds. He fed a mixture of 90 parts of bran, 80 of middlings, 18 of ready-mixed feed and 4 of oil meal. He fed five pounds of this to each cow daily. The cows were on pasture six months. This feed cost him $49.43 a cow and the average milk production was 4,662 pounds of milk and 182 pounds of fat. His net profit was $37.30 per cow.

"After the college purchased them their feed was changed to a balanced ration and instead of feeding each cow five pounds, they were fed according to the amount of milk they produced—in other words, the more milk they gave, the more feed they were given. The cows were kept on pasture only five months instead of six, and got alfalfa hay and corn silage instead of timothy. This change boosted the average to 6,375 pounds of milk—an increase of 36.7 per cent. The buterfat increase was 77 pounds per cow. The feed cost was $61.42 instead of $49.43, but the profit per cow was $62.90 instead of $37.30. This means that by proper feeding the owner could have increased his net profit $25 per cow, which would not have been a bad investment."

Staff Cheap Insurance in Handling Dairy Bull

A few days ago a Fort Collins man was killed by his Holstein bull. He was leading the bull into the barn by means of a halter and lead strap when the accident occurred. This is only one more added to the great list of people who have been killed or seriously injured by bulls, states L. P. McCann of the animal husbandry department, Colorado Agricultural college, who adds that this accident, like many others, could have been avoided if the handler had not trusted the bull.

Every dairy bull, warns Professor McCann, should be regarded as a potential killer and handled accordingly. The great number of accidents occurring from careless handling proves this to be true. In spite of this men are women continue to risk their lives every day, thinking that their bulls are different from the others that have already taken a toll of lives.

For the man who handles one of these animals, the small amount of money required to buy a good bull staff is about the cheapest life insurance in which a man can invest.

Self-Feeding Cows Not Profitable at Illinois

Tests were recently made at the University of Illinois on eight dairy cows to determine the value of self feeding. The practice was not economical nor were the milk yields appreciably increased.

For a short period after calving the amount of feed consumed was too small. Later it was too large, and the cows increased in weight. The animals were not injured by the practice because they were gradually accustomed to it.

The chief purpose of the test was to determine the relative palatability of different feeds. Corn proved most palatable of the low protein concentrates. Complete details may be obtained by writing for Bulletin 289 published by the Illinois experiment station, Urbana.

Euying Dairy Cows

When buying cows at a closing out sale of a man who has been in a test association, one gets a chance at cows that have records. The better cows are mostly worth the money they bring, especially if they have not had the best of care. If one buys such a cow that has the earmarks of a dairy cow and has a fair record with ordinary care, and takes her home and feeds her and makes her comfortable one may venture to say the cow will do her part.

Danger in Warm Cream

It is a common practice among farmers to keep cream too warm even in winter. Cream should never be allowed to freeze, because it is then hard to get representative samples. In order to avoid this, some producers keep their cream near a stove or in a place so warm that it is likely to sour or to absorb bad odors or both. In order to produce the highest quality cream it is necessary to be provided the year around with a cool place, free from all contaminants.

VICTOR McLAGLEN AND DOLORES DEL RHO IN "WHAT PRICE GLORY" WILL MAKE FOR ATTRACTION.

"What Price Glory" Shows Funny Side of World Conflict

Every soldier will tell you that he had a lot of fun out of a war. A. E. F. or some erstwhile gob of the U. S. N. and they will smile and say, "betcha." But ask a leatherneck, a soldier of the seven seas, what he thinks about it and your answer will be "hot dog." That's why the Captain Flagg in the pictureization of "What Price Glory" remarks after a leave of absence and a hilarious visit to Barle-Due—"This is the best war I ever attended."

Victor McLaglen, soldier of fortune, captain in the world war, and a capital actor, is the Captain Flagg of the story; Edmund Lowe is Sergeant Quirt, and lovely Dolores Del Rio will be seen as Charmaine. These head a great cast and a host of auxiliaries in the big scenes. The picture is in 12 reels.

CLT RID OF ALL BOARDER COWS

Get rid of the boarder cows and make the good ones produce more milk is the advice of Prof. H. A. Hopper at the State College of Agriculture to New York state dairymen.

The milk situation is largely in the hands of Empire state producers, he says, and if they take a few steps to insure plenty of milk during the next few weeks, the usual shortage period, they can do much to meet the demands of the New York market.

To increase milk production, dairymen should feed their cows more, especially more protein; they should dispose of boarders and give their feed to the good cows; stable the cows when the weather is cold or rainy; be sure the cows get plenty of water, and take good care of cows that will freshen soon.

Cows that are on short pasture should have green fodder. Good second growth in meadows may be pastured if the cows are managed carefully. They should have a feeding of dry hay before they are turned into the meadow, and the grass, of course, should be dry, for they may find it they eat wet green grass.

To increase the protein cows get, they may be fed a mixture of 200 pounds corn or hominy, 100 barley 200 wheat bran, 200 cottonseed meal, 100 linseed oil meal, and 100 pounds gluten feed. Dairymen who have peas, oats and barley may mix 1,200 pounds of the ground mixture with 400 cottonseed meal, 200 gluten feed, and 200 oil meal.

Cows that will freshen soon should be in good condition; grain fed to them is well invested, Professor Hopper says.

Nothing helps more nor is a better investment than a good supply of drinking water for cows. Milk is mostly water, but cows can't make milk without it. Buckets in the barn quickly pay for themselves.

DAIRY FACTS

BIG FACTORS IN PRODUCING MILK

Because of the prevailing high prices of feeds much stress has been laid on weeding out the poor cows and keeping only those that produce at a profit. "This is sound policy, only if the cows have been properly fed and cared for, states E. A. Gamutt, assistant dairy specialist at the New Jersey College of Agriculture.

"Two factors must be considered in milk production, namely, inherited ability of the cow to produce milk and feed and care. The importance of proper feeding was proved recently by the Minnesota experiment station, which purchased four poor cows from a member of a cow-testing association. This man thought he had fed his cows properly. He bought large quantities of milk feeds. He fed a mixture of 30 parts of bran, 80 of middlings, 18 of ready-mixed feed and 4 of oil meal. He fed five pounds of this to each cow daily. The cows were on pasture six months. This feed cost him $49.43 a cow and the average milk production was 4,622 pounds of milk and 182 pounds of fat. His net profit was $37.30 per cow.

"After the college purchased them their feed was changed to a balanced ration and instead of feeding each cow five pounds, they were fed according to the amount of milk they produced—in other words, the more milk they gave, the more feed they were given. The cows were kept on pasture only five months instead of six, and got alfalfa hay and corn silage instead of timothy. This change boosted the average to 6,375 pounds of milk—an increase of 36.7 per cent. The butterfat increase was 77 pounds per cow. The feed cost was $61.42 instead of $49.43, but the profit per cow was $62.90 instead of $37.30. This means that by proper feeding the owner could have increased his net profit $25 per cow, which would not have been a bad investment."

Staff Cheap Insurance in Handling Dairy Bull

A few days ago a Fort Collins man was killed by his Holstein bull. He was leading the bull into the barn by means of a halter and lead strap when the accident occurred. This is only one more added to the great list of people who have been killed or seriously injured by bulls, states L. P. McCann, of the animal husbandry department, Colorado Agricultural college, who adds that this accident, like many others, could have been avoided if the handler had not trusted the bull.

Every dairy bull, warns Professor McCann, should be regarded as a potential killer and handled accordingly. The great number of accidents occurring from careless handling proves this to be true. In spite of this men are different from the others that have already taken a toll of lives.

For the man who handles one of these animals, the small amount of money required to buy a good bull staff is about the cheapest life insurance in which a man can invest.

Self-Feeding Cows Not Profitable at Illinois

Tests were recently made at the University of Illinois on eight dairy cows to determine the value of self-feeding. The practice was not economical nor were the milk yields appreciably increased.

For a short period after calving the amount of feed consumed was too small. Later it was too large, and the cows increased in weight. The animals were not injured by the practice because they were gradually accustomed to it.

The chief purpose of the test was to determine the relative palatability of different feeds. Corn proved most palatable of the low protein concentrates. Complete details may be obtained by writing for Bulletin 289 published by the Illinois experiment station, Urbana.

Euying Dairy Cows

When buying cows at a closing out sale of a man who has been in a test association, one gets a chance at cows that have records. The better cows are mostly worth the money they bring, especially if they have not had the best of care. If one buys such a cow that has the earmarks of a dairy cow and has a fair record with ordinary care, and takes her home and feeds her and makes her comfortable one may venture to say the cow will do her part.

Danger in Warm Cream

It is a common practice among farmers to keep cream too warm even in winter. Cream should never be allowed to freeze, because it is then hard to get representative samples. In order to avoid this, some producers keep their cream near a stove or in a place so warm that it is likely to sour or to absorb bad odors or both. In order to produce the highest quality cream it is necessary to be provided the year around with a cool place, free from all contaminations.
